Not illustrated. 1920 Excerpt: .be balanced by using the amount of the Cash Dr. and Cash Cr. columns only. To prove cash, at any time, take the difference between these two columns. The cash book illustrated is shown without the pages in the folio column. These should be inserted as each item is posted. The Journal. Separate columns must be kept in the journal for each ledger to which items will be debited or credited. On the debit side, there must be columns for the general ledger and for the purchase ledger. No debit column for the sales ledger is necessary as the business does not give notes or drafts to customers on account, hence there will ordinarily be no debits to the sales ledger from the journal. On the credit side, there must be columns for the general ledger and for the sales ledger. No credit column for the purchase ledger is necessary. (See illustration on page 216) It is necessary to post the totals of the Accounts Payable and Accounts Receivable columns only as the items in the General columns, both debit and credit, have been posted to the general ledger daily. Casii Receipts, October 19--Returns and Allowances on Sales. A separate book of entry will be kept for returns and allowances on sales. In it should be entered all returned goods, rebates, and allowances that are to be credited to customers accounts. Daily it will be posted to the credit of the customers accounts affected. It is...
