In his distress he cried unto God; in the day of his trouble he sought the Lord. In this time of depression, thoughts of God did not, as at other times, afford him consolation. I remembered God and was troubled. Perhaps he thought of the holiness and justice of God, in contrast with his own vileness and sin, and his spirit was overwhelmed. So deep was his distress that he could not speak, and utterance could not be given to the anguish of his soul. Thou holdest mine eyes waking. I am so troubled that I cannot speak. He seems to have remembered his former experience, the time his soul triumphed in God, his song in the night but even this did not lift the cloud from his spirit, and he was led to the very borders of despair, and cried, Will the Lord east off forever? Will he be favorable no more? Is his mercy clean gone forever? Doth his promise fail forevermore? Hath God forgotten to be gracious? Hath he in anger shut up his tender mercies? And then, as though he felt reproved for these thoughts, these expressions of despondency, he seems to pause, and says, This is my infirmity, this is my weakness. I will rise above it. I will remember the works of the Lord, surely I will remember thy wonders of old; I will meditate also of all thy work, and talk of thy doings. The...
