Excerpt: . . . 15 1 back and read the Forusca Commission report and the 2 report of the Froyne Committee and the like. The 3 analysis of each of those commissions to some extent 4 was similar in terms of starting with the growth of 5 the caseload, projecting out the possibility of 6 continued growth of the caseload, and then reaching 7 recommendations in the case of both that committee and 8 the Forusca Commission of the National Court of 9 Appeals. My own sense is that--and I think the 10 thrust of our testimony is that even a doubling or 11 tripling over the future is not necessarily cause for 12 those sorts of significant structural changes, each of 13 which we think comes with significant cost and 14 disadvantages. If there were a simple solution that 15 would not introduce more delay and more expense to the 16 litigation process it would be one thing, but each of 17 those solutions we think comes with a price. 18 JUDGE RYMER: May I follow up on that 19 question, please I assume that your association 20 deals with a number of matters that arent simply of 21 importance in New York City but rather across 22 institutional, city, and probably even national NEAL R.
