Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Inside Scenes of Atlanta s Black Week: A Series of Social Sensations and a Carnival of Crimes; Terminating With a Terrible Tale of Tragedies and Tears It is a theory in newspaper circles that crime, like storms, travels in waves. When one terrible event has occurred the newspaper man with nose for news, is on the alert, looking for and expecting something else of the same nature, something similar to happen. And he is rarely disappointed. It is a strange theory, but its demonstration is stranger still. There are storms of lesser magnitude, and there are cyclones. The distinction is one of degree alone. So with these crime waves. There are cyclones - simooms of crime. As the simooms with its breath of hell swoops down on the city of the desert, stifling, suffocating every creature in its path, so did a crime simoom swoop down upon the fair city of Atlanta - startling, stifling, suffocating. No words can picture the consternation, the destruction, the desolation it brought. It was something unique in the history of any city - something unparalleled in the annals of crime. The story of that chain of events, rushing in upon each other as they did, is one of deep and absorbing interest. It is of interest not to the seeker after the sensational alone; were it only that, there would perhaps belittle reason for this volume; but it is more. Here is a study for psychologists. It opens a field for discussion, and at the same time tells a story so peculiar, so absorbing, so tragical that it all seems beyond the bounds of possibility and proves, if proof...
